Commander's Message

By: Col Patrick O'Key, Commander, FL Wing

As the summer winds down, squadron meetings, training, and planning will get back to a normal tempo. I hope everyone had a safe and successful summer and had a chance to get away to explore, visit family, or just relax and recharge your batteries. This summer has been a busy one for the Florida Wing. We accomplished many things and continue to operate with a very demanding schedule.

In the Aerospace Education arena, I am pleased to announce and was proud to accept on your behalf at the 2007 National Board and Annual Conference in Atlanta, the Aerospace Education Mission Award not only for the Southeast Region but first place overall in the nation. Congratulations for a job well done by Lt Col John Lynn, the driving force for all of us, and to everyone who participated in this achievement.

In the Cadet Programs arena, the Florida Wing placed second overall in the National Cadet Competition, completed our summer encampment at Camp Blanding, and had many cadets traveling across the country participating in many different activities. We hosted 4 cadets in the International Air Cadet Exchange (IACE) program, and are hosting a Regional Cadet Leadership School (RCLS). The Florida Wing was recognized at the National Conference in the Cadet Programs with the Coral Springs Cadet Squadron receiving the top award as the National Squadron of Distinction. Capt Bruce Sage was in attendance and accepted the award personally. Maj Mesones and her staff have been very busy and I wanted to take the time to let them know how much we all appreciate their hard work and dedication to the CAP and the Cadet Programs.

In the Emergency Services and Operation department, we have not had much down time. We are continuing to train Wing Alerting Officers and Incident Commanders. We are lacking IC's and trained Mission Base staff. The rules are changing for us to continue to participate in this arena and we all have to continue to learn and train to the new standards. Many of the required ICS Courses are available on line, and we are partnering with other agencies to get the required classroom training. I ask each one of you who is interested in participating to seek out the certifications and actively participate in the training around the wing. We are almost through an eight week mission in the Southeast Florida area in the Homeland Security arena, and we have many indicators that this type of mission tasking is going to become routine. We are actively meeting with as many of the Emergency Management personnel in each of the counties that express an interest in a partnership with CAP. We have much to offer and are still one of the best support agencies that can react quickly and efficiently without breaking their budget. We are also working an MOU with the Florida Air National Guard, as well as several other state and federal agencies.

We have received nine new twelve passenger vans as well as six FEMA trailers. These will be used to support many of our missions. The new vans are set up with heavy duty hitches and will be able to transport the trailers to help support the demands of the Wing. Two of the trailers will be set up as mobile Aerospace Education training centers and for displays at events around the Wing.

I ask each and every one of you to continue to learn and grow. Constant training is important for all areas whether you are an aircrew, ground team or mission base staff member. We also need to respect and support every member of the Civil Air Patrol in everything we do. We are still the largest Wing in the nation, and we need to continue to raise the bar.

Patrick O'Key

Exciting Weekend of Jumps, Flights and More

By: 2d Lt Lee Chambers, Tyndall Panama Composite Squadron

On Friday, 22-June at Ft. Benning, GA, members of the Tyndall Panama Composite and the Marianna Composite Squadrons toured the Army Infantry Museum and the Jump Towers before taking part in their own jumps. Cadets and senior members learned about the roots of the US Army infantry regiments dating back to colonial periods while touring the Museum. Exhibits included articles of clothing and personal belongings of the era and from every war and major engagement until the present.

Following the Museum, the cars were loaded up and members drove toward the Jump School. Uncertainty and queasiness overcame a few cadets as towers got closer and grew taller. However, relief was in sight as the team approached their platform for the day, a 34 foot jump tower used by jump school students for their initial jump. Every cadet and senior member was given a brief lesson in parachuting before donning a rig and helmet and heading up the stairs of the platform to test their fears. Fear became fun as one by one every individual took one step out the door and slid down a zip line where personnel were waiting to assist them. "All of the cadets had a great time and a truly interesting experience. I would recommend it to any cadet so they can overcome any fears and have a good time" said C/Amn Johns.

Arriving at the Panama City Airport the next day, the nervousness and excitement of the previous day returned as cadets soon learned that not only would they get the opportunity to fly in the CAP Cessna 172, they would also get the opportunity to fly the aircraft. While some of the squadron mates were flying, the remainder of the cadets received an Aerospace Education class and then put that to practice when, led by 2^d Lt MJ Ramosa, the cadets built and flew paper airplanes.

After the fun of paper airplanes, it was once again back into the classroom for a lesson on flight line safety before the cadets were led out onto the tarmac by 1st Lt Brandon Williams for classes in flight line marshalling. The Cadets not only learned the basics of marshalling an aircraft, but by day's end were actually able to guide in, block, and taxi out an aircraft. "I thought that is was definitely a lot of fun and exciting, something most kids my age don't get the opportunity to do", C/Amn Adam Wilson said.

Cadets Investigate Careers Up Close and Personal

By: Maj Vickie M. Meyer, Florida Wing Cadet Programs

The Career Shadowing 2007 Event took place at Patrick AFB, was hosted by the 920th Rescue Wing and supported by the 45th Space Wing. The purpose of this activity was to expose the eight attending cadets to the many career fields offered by the Air Force Reserves and the Air Force. The busy schedule included tours of a HH-60 Pave Hawk helicopter, the Command Post, the Fitness Center and the ParaRescue Jumpers (PJ's) Squadron with their equipment. The 39th Squadron pilots briefed them. The cadets learned about career fields in Intel, Honor Guard, C-130 flight, Public Affairs, Air Traffic Control, JAG, Medical, Security Forces, Mission Support Group, Aircraft Maintenance, Security Forces Weapons, K-9 Unit, Disaster Preparedness, Logistics Readiness, Civil Engineering, and still others.

In addition to all of this, the cadets had time to enjoy a beach house that Patrick AFB makes available to service personnel. There they had a barbeque, many meetings around the large dining room table, time to get to know each other, and SOME sleep. The cadets came with open minds, and left with lots of things to think about in terms of choices they are going to be making in their lives.

Wing PAO Awarded Exceptional Achievement

By: Capt Terrance Power, Director of Marketing and Public Relations

Florida Wing Public Affairs Officer 1st Lt Jackie Zarrilli was honored with the Maj Howell Balsem CAP Public Affairs Exceptional Achievement Award at the PAO Academy Awards Luncheon on 7 August. Lt Zarrilli's submission of an outstanding slide presentation in PowerPoint earned her this national recognition.

In announcing the award, National Headquarters' 2007 PAO Academy Chairman and Southeast Region Director of Public Affairs, Capt Stephen Soloman, stated "Thank you for your excellent entry and for your consistently superior work on behalf of the U.S. Civil Air Patrol. Your public affairs program sets a high standard, strengthening CAP's message and missions while serving as a shining example for your PAO peers nationwide to follow. The selfless volunteer efforts of members like you have made CAP the nation's premiere volunteer organization it is today, and your continued vigilance will safeguard and strengthen our missions in the future."

Success Story - From Street Gang to CAP Chaplain

By: Lt Col Dewey E. Painter, Sr., Deputy Commander Springfield Composite Squadron

When I was 13 years old, I wanted to get into CAP. However I lived on the wrong side of the tracks in a poor neighborhood, and no one would give me transportation to and from the CAP squadron. Since I could not find something good like the CAP to get into, the street got me. By the time I was 14, I was knifed and then by the time I was 16, I was knifed again and shot once in street fighting. Had I gotten into CAP, I believe my youth could have had a much happier outlook. At the age of 16, I joined the Florida National Guard and when I turned 17 I enlisted in the US Navy, where I served for 22 years. Joining the military service was the beginning of new directions in my life. At the age of 19, I became a Christian and then found real purpose for my life, and since that day, I have never been the same.

When I was challenged in May of 1998 to join CAP, it was the story of my youth that drew me to accept the call to serve. As a youth I, felt that no one wanted to help lead me in the right direction because they would not help me become a cadet with the CAP. It was this that challenged me to join the Riverview Squadron which was in the north side of Jacksonville. Joining the CAP would allow me to return my missed opportunity to my old neighborhoods. Time and events moved me on in CAP, however I still saw the need for a unit in the northeast part of Jacksonville. Later when the Riverview Squadron closed down, that need became even clearer. I attempted to get youths to the other units, but that was not working for the same reason I experienced as a teenager. It appeared the real answer is to bring the unit to them.

With this conviction at heart I began the process to start a Composite Squadron in the northeast area. As a Chaplain, I cannot hold a command position, therefore I feel that my effectiveness overall should be serving within the command structure in a direct leadership position. Due to my schedule as a full time missionary, I feel I can be most effective as the Deputy Commander. Having the confidence of the parents, they are looking to me to provide leadership within the unit beyond the Spiritual leadership a Chaplain would provide.

It has been my express honor to serve as a CAP Chaplain since February 1999, as the Group Two Chaplain, Florida Wing Chaplain, Deputy then Assistant SER Chaplain and finally as the Florida Wing Chaplain again. As I leave my present position to move into new service within the CAP I do so with great respect for those that have led and I have served with. Chaplain Lewis McMullen will serve as an excellent Wing Chaplain and is highly recommended for that position. As this step is taken I can certainly ask for your prayers and help as we move forward with the Springfield Composite Squadron. Any help to get us going in the right direction would be most appreciated.

Success Story - From Cadet to Black Belt (30 Years Later)

By: Capt David Graham, Gainesville Composite Squadron

It took 30 years but she did it. Capt Sandra L. Graham received the Ranger Program's highest award of Expert Ranger at CAP's nationally recognized Hawk Mountain Ranger Training School in July. "I wish I had gotten my black belt when I was a cadet," she said, "because it would have been easier and my number would have been a lot lower." She is the 225th person to join the ranks since the Ranger program began in Pennsylvania in 1956. Capt Graham is the third member of her family to achieve this coveted award. "I come from a small family of black belts, numbers 24, 78, and 225." She follows her father and brother.

Capt Graham rejoined as a senior member in 2006. She was awarded a squadron flight scholarship and completed her solo training at age 16. She attended the first all female squadron at Hawk Mountain in 1972 and again in 1973. She represented our nation in the United Kingdom as an International Air Cadet Exchange participant in 1974. She was executive officer at the nine-day Black River Mississippi Ranger School in the summer of 1975. That same year she commanded an all female drill team taking first place in the Wing Competition and was a member of the 18-man drill team that placed first in the Region Competition. From 1971 through 1976 she attended the Glades Ranger School every third weekend of the month as an orange scarf staff cadet.

She talks with pride when she mentions her former cadet squadron, "The Cutler Cadet Squadron in Perrine, FL placed third in the Nation in 1974 and First in the Nation in 1975. Over the years our squadron produced eight Spaatz cadets and 15 Expert Rangers. I believe that is a record that remains today." She is Spaatz recipient number 309.

"I wish to give back some of what I've learned in CAP, that's why I rejoined." Capt Graham is currently a staff member of the Glades Ranger School held each month in South Florida. She is also Emergency Services Officer and Finance Officer at the Lantana Cadet Squadron in South Florida. It is no wonder that she has found her way back to CAP.

World War II Memorabilia Come Alive

By: Lt Col David Moseley, Commander, Lake Composite Squadron

CAP Cadet Jakes Jones of the Bay Side Bridge Composite Squadron (L) plays the part of a WWII P-47 Fighter Pilot, and compares notes with Major Peter Strohl (R), who is making a stained glass picture of this airplane which was headquartered at the Leesburg International Airport during WWII.

Lake Composite Squadron and other members of CAP gathered at the Dade Battlefield in Bushnell, FL, to see displays of military equipment and uniforms from all over the world. Not seen in Florida since WWII were uniformed German military troops, members of the Shutstaffel (SS Brigades) and one U-Boat Kaptain. One WWII veteran said that even 60 years after his experience in WWII, "Seeing those uniforms still makes the hair stand up on the back of my neck!"

Not to be out done by the Germans, there were French Marines, American Marines, Russian Special Forces, and even one person dressed like a Palestinian fighter. Even the Lake City Squadron commander, Capt Rick Peters, had a story or two to tell about carrying BAR's (Browning Automatic Rifles), M-2's and other 'Shootin' Irons."

Those displaying their gear were re-enactors and Living History participants who travel around the state of Florida. For further information, contact the Dade Battlefield Society, Inc. 7200 CR 605,

IACE Cadets Experience Florida Hospitality

By: Meghan Power, Clearwater Cadet Squadron

Members of the 2007 International Air Cadet Exchange (IACE) program spent nearly two weeks in the Sunshine State visiting various military, aviation, and tourist destinations. Two cadets from Canada and two from the United Kingdom (Scotland and England) and their escort endured a hectic but fun-filled schedule during their time here.

Arriving in Fort Lauderdale, they partook in snorkeling in Key Largo, Orientation Flights in Tamiami, and a tour of the National Hurricane Center before heading off to the Kennedy Space Center for a full day at that facility. A tour of MacDill Air Force Base, glider flights in Zephyrhills, a day at Fantasy of Flight in Winter Haven, and, of course, a very full day at Disneyworld in Orlando made for a memorable stay in Florida.

Our thanks for Capt. Sal Valentino of the St. Petersburg Composite Squadron for posting this great slide show of the Cadet's adventures:

http://www.stpetecap.org/Slide_Show/IACE%202007/default.htm.

Congratulations to everyone in the Florida Wing who assisted in this effort, and special thanks to our friends at Disneyworld and Fantasy of Flight for their generous hospitality!

New Secure and Efficient FL Wing Web Companion

By: Capt John Posey, Florida Wing Deputy Director of Information Technology

The Florida Wing Web Companion program is a tool to interact with the Wing website. It allows various directorates to share files and communicate selectively with their members. In concert with the services of the new, sophisticated Wing email system (see article below), we can now tightly integrate many of our reporting, communications and data management functions. These functions are secure and internalized within our own Florida Wing system.

The Web Companion software project began as a simple effort to relieve the burden on the Wing Web Server and to end our dependence on third party websites. We accomplish this by moving some of the functionality to this non-browser program. Even though it is not a browser, it communicates with the Wing Web Server via the Internet.

Currently, the program:

- Captures all Safety Officer reports for the Wing.
- Provides secure file sharing and communications for Emergency Services.
- Enables IT staff to administer the Help Desk.
- Allows unit webmasters to maintain their own unit websites in a secure environment.
- Enables submission of the monthly vehicle report. The Logistics staff may view and manage the database from their local computers.
- Enables Marketing and Public Affairs staff to view and manage all archived news stories.
- Gives all members capability to view the present and past news stories.
- Manages applications and communications to and between the Operations staff for the Critical Members List and email system.

The Florida Wing Web Companion software has become an integration of the Wing Website, the new email system, and the member's computer to provide an automation platform that is greater than the sum of its parts. You are encouraged to gain familiarity with the program.

First, you can download the Users Manual at <http://flwg.us/Florida%20Wing%20Web%20Companion%20Program%20Manual.pdf>.

Then you can download and install the program at <http://flwg.us/html/Wing%20Reports.html>.

Now that the new Wing email system is in place, we ask that you contact Information Technology so that they may help to set up your group in the system and eliminate the use of unsecured, 3rd party email groups. Also, all new ideas for the system will be greatly appreciated, send them to <mailto:jposey@flwg.us>.

CONGRATULATIONS and THANK YOU to the FL Wing Information Technology Staff!!!

Join the New FL Wing General List

The new Florida Wing email system is a tool to provide members with timely and secure communications. It is in concert with the services of the new, sophisticated FL Wing Web Companion (see article above). These functions are secure and internalized within our own Florida Wing system. This new email system that includes the FL Wing General List replaces the previously used group distribution functions offered by Yahoo.

We encourage all FL Wing members to subscribe to the General List. When you subscribe, you will receive selected announcements, alerts and reminders, updates to activities, and other informative and interesting materials that cover all aspects of the Wing and other Unit activities open to all CAP members. The messages are controlled to protect you from getting inundated with spam and inappropriate communications.

To subscribe, confirm your email address on the CAP National website is correct and simply send an email message using your preferred email account to <mailto:General-Subscribe@FLWG.US>. The subject line and text of the message are not important - the email itself is the instrument of registration. You will soon receive an email to which you should reply and confirm that you want to join (if you do not receive the confirmation email, check your Spam/Junk folder). If you need assistance, send an email to <mailto:General-mailto:Help@FLWG.US> and you will receive instructions for using the list, including how to accomplish message retrieval from the archives. Personal requests for assistance may be sent to <mailto:jposey@flwg.us>.

CAP National Board Meeting Actions

By: Col Patrick O'Key, FL Wing Commander

The following is a summary of the outcome of the U. S. Civil Air Patrol National Board Meeting on 9 August 2007 in Atlanta Georgia.

- Brig Gen Amy Courter ran unopposed and was successfully elected for her second term as the CAP National Vice Commander.
- Current staff members were confirmed for the National offices of Chief of Staff, Legal Officer, Financial Officer, Controller, and Chief of Chaplain Service.
- The motion failed to allow an incumbent National Commander to run for a second term of office of three years.
- The motion was indefinitely postponed to allow, under certain circumstances, a Region Commander to be reappointed to serve a one year term extension not to exceed 3 additional years with a vote of the full National Executive Committee including their rationale for the extension.
- The motion was passed, depending upon financial budget considerations, for a bi-annual National Commander's Emergency Services Competition and for the award to the winning Region be the National Commander's Trophy.
- The motion was passed to abolish the position of Group Inspector General and allow Wing Commanders to appoint, in their stead, multiple Wing Assistant Inspector Generals.
- The motion was passed to require that notice of all membership suspensions be sent to National Headquarters. Upon receipt of this notification, NHQ will annotate the member's record and all membership privileges, including e-Services access, will be terminated for the duration of the suspension.

Please note: Commander O'Key reports that many agenda items were published on the National Headquarters website, and some members shared their opinions with him prior to the meeting. In the future, please respect the chain of command. Take your comments to your Unit Commander first, and both of you can discuss the issue. The Group Commander is the next step in the chain followed by the Wing Commander. Lately, some links have been skipped in the chain.

Medical Emergency Use Authorization

Maj Sergio B. Seoane, M.D., Florida Wing Medical Officer

After the events of September 11, 2001 and the anthrax postal attacks less than a month later, the United States Department of Health and Human Services began to develop plans for large scale off label use of US Food and Drug Administration (FDA) approved pharmaceutical products and unapproved products during a national emergency ("off label" means prescribing drugs for a purpose outside the scope of the drug's approved label). This came to the forefront because the mechanism by which products necessary for biological defense were products that were unapproved by the FDA.

The Product BioShield Act of 2004 (Public Law 108-276) established the comprehensive Emergency Use Authorization program (EUA). The EUA permits the FDA to approve the emergency use of drugs, devices and medical products including diagnostic products that are not previously approved, cleared, or licensed by the FDA or the off label use of approved products in certain well-defined emergency situations. The use of an EUA product does not require the detailed, formal, informed consent process used for human research and study participants. Prospective patients will always be informed about the opportunity to accept or refuse a EUA product. There is however, one exception, military personnel specifically waive this right.

There is an interesting aspect about the Product BioShield Act of 2004: there is no requirement that would prevent EUA products from being dispensed without a physician prescription. Therefore, in a national emergency, prescription products can be provided by a non-licensed provider or any distribution method or location approved by the FDA commissioner in issuing the EUA.

The first use of EUA authority occurred in 2005 when in late 2004 a federal court issued an injunction against the Department of Defense on the grounds that the FDA should obtain public comments before issuing the determination that military personnel should be vaccinated against anthrax. This court determined that the use of the anthrax vaccine was an unapproved use of the drug. Health and Human Services Secretary Tommy G. Thompson then issued a Declaration of Emergency on January 14, 2005 thus allowing the Department of Defense to begin issuing the anthrax vaccine.
